January 13, 1930.

Dear Mr. Clarke:

As the season is approaching when various classes in the School begin to think of social activities I wish to call your attention to the rule of the University which forbids any class or division of the School to conduct a dance. This includes any form of gathering at which dancing is part of the program whether in the day or evening. Furthermore, the rule covers any function of this character in which the class participates whether directly or indirectly. You will please see to it that this rule is followed out in arranging any of your class functions.

Very truly yours,

Dean.

Mr. Joseph G. Clarke, President,
Second Year Evening Class,
Division.
