Dear Mrs. [REDACTED],

I am hopeful that this letter will find you and that you will be able to take the time to read it.

My most sincere congratulations! From all I have read and heard, the choice that made you a candidate for the vice presidency was based on your hard work and as a woman that makes me very, very proud.

(If I may) Geraldine you have been given an opportunity to lead the way for women in politics. Please retain your dignity, charm and grace as you plunge into the coming months of speech making. You can do justice to representing womanhood as it should be by not becoming a partner to the mud slinging and degrading of those whom you'll oppose.

You can maintain your strength to stand for what you believe will help our country without the ever-increasing need to feel compelled to put someone down when you are treated in this way.

Geraldine, this is our country and we know its great. Our children are watching and hopefully learning what it takes from each of us to keep it great.

May your success be gratifying and greater wisdom be your reward.

Most sincerely,
