Remote Library Resources for Faculty

We are continuing to provide library services to faculty while working remotely. Reference librarians are ready to assist you with your research and reference needs. You can reach them via chat, email (refdesk@law.fordham.edu), or contact your liaison librarian.

Interlibrary Loan and Document Delivery department is able to assist you with copies of books and book chapters. To request materials, please follow the directions on the InterLibrary Loan page.

The Maloney Library offers access to a large collection of ebooks accessible through the library catalog. For more information, see the item on ebooks in this issue of Maloney Matters below.

Supporting Our Students Remotely

The Maloney Library has quickly transitioned to supporting our students' distance learning. Many of our resources were already available online including an extensive selection of databases, eBooks, and journals. These materials support students writing papers and performing journal work and are available to all of the Fordham Law community.

In addition to online materials the Maloney Library already provided, we have acquired subscriptions to a number of student focused platforms that provide online access to casebooks and study aids. Casebooks published by Aspen, Carolina Academic Press, Lexis, West, and Wolters Kluwer are available to students, along with study aids, such as the popular Examples & Explanations, Nutshells, and many others. We have also made a copy of the official online Bluebook available to every student.

To access these materials, please visit the Library Services During COVID-19 webpage.
