MEMORANDUM OFFICE

Dear Jerry,

The years in journalism knocked most adjectives out of my writing style, but I just want you to know that you're becoming the Democratic vice presidential nominee is one of the truly great things to occur in our political process in this generation. It's super for the country and for the party, as well as a fitting tribute to you as a public servant and as a person.

Given conditions in my industry, I can't pick up and offer myself to your campaign for the next few months, much as I would like to. However, I may be able to contribute some work in issue areas with which I am most familiar, as well as on the strategic framework for those issues. I've done this over the years for Pat Moynihan and other close friends, so if you feel this would be useful, just say the word & I'll make myself available to you or whoever you might designate.

There are some ripening issues involving our financial system & its changing relationship to people & communities that ought to be tapped by the party at all levels this year.

Good luck on this great adventure.

Warmest regards,
