FORDHAM UNIVERSITY
SCHOOL OF LAW
1985

President: Joseph A. O'Hare, S.J.
Dean: John D. Feerick, Esq.

Lincoln Center
New York, New York
We, the Class of 1985, dedicate this yearbook to a man who has been an inspiration to us in both our professional and personal lives. He became Dean of Fordham Law School in 1982 — the very year the class of '85 began its tenure at Fordham. In his address to our class at Orientation he said, "we are starting this together." Togetherness has been John Feerick's philosophy since we have known him: to strive together for excellence; to care together for the common good; to build together for the future. John Feerick has been a living example of this philosophy.

It is with sincere gratitude that we honor this man, John D. Feerick, "truly a man for all seasons."

Fordham University School of Law
Collins Auditorium, the first home of the Fordham Law School, was barely a year old when the School opened its doors to thirteen law students in September, 1905.

For almost two decades, 302 Broadway, the Vincent Building, served as the Law School’s home.

By 1915 extraordinary growth necessitated moving the Law School to the 28th floor of the Woolworth Building, then the tallest building in the world.
October 24, 1984 marked the “second founding” of Fordham Law School at Lincoln Center. When the Law School was first dedicated at Lincoln Center in 1961, one could hear a communal sigh of relief emanating from the faculty and administration as 56 years of nomadic wandering had finally come to an end.

The “second founding” was marked by a radically different kind of relief — by working overtime for the two preceding weeks and all through the last few nights the new wing was completed by October 24, 1984, the day it was to be dedicated; the day when Sandra Day O’Connor, the first woman to sit on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States, would come to deliver the keynote address and receive an honorary degree as Robert J. Kennedy had done 13 years before her.

A MESSAGE FROM DIRECTOR MAUREEN PROVOST -

Over the past three or four years many of you have come to know the Career Planning Center. With your support, our services have developed greatly including a three-fold increase in the number of employers recruiting on-campus; outreach to over 4,000 employers annually; and a doubling of the number of fulltime staff members.

These years have been very productive for the Career Planning Center with promise of continued growth. We feel that our purpose is to assist students in reaching their goals. We are here to help you develop effective job search strategies and find fulfillment in your careers. Be apprised that our services continue to be available to you post-graduation and let us know if we can assist you in any way. We need your support to be able to open new avenues for future Fordham Law graduates.

Much success to you all.

Message To The Class of 1985

"It was the best of times and the worst of times" as you progressed through Fordham Law School. Like no other group of students in our history, you experienced first hand the effects of a major renovation and expansion of our physical plant. To say the least, you acquired your legal education under unique circumstances. Walls and ceilings collapsed; water flowed freely through our corridors; jackhammers pounded away outside; and huge cranes moved steel into place on top, alongside and under our present building. You accepted these challenges gracefully and patiently and helped us realize our dreams for a new Law School complex. For all of this, we are gratefully in your debt.

But, you gave much more to our School. You established new clubs and organizations, enhanced existing publications and programs, and brought an infectious enthusiasm and energy to your School-related endeavors. The cooperation and caring you displayed are the characteristics we will always associate with your class. I encourage you to make this spirit of service the hallmark of your life and I thank you for making so many contributions to our School. I congratulate you also for all your accomplishments and achievements.

It is, therefore, a fond farewell I bid you on behalf of the faculty and administration. We will miss you. We hope you will come back often.

Sincerely,

John D. Feenick

Legal Writing class.
After a day of classes
At Dear Old Fordham
I went to the Pub
To escape from the boredom.

To my surprise
As I concluded walking
I looked into the Pub
And saw some professors talking.

Marcus and Abramovsky
Were talking crime,
Abe smoking cigarettes
Three at a time.

"The Supreme Court's too liberal,"
Hugh Hansen moaned.
"Nonsense, they're fascists,"
Dan Capra intoned.

Calamari and Perillo
Strode around proud
"We're making a fortune,"
They shouted out loud.

While Byre and Phillips
Stood laughing by the door,
"We've never given a grade
Over 74!"

Mike Madison, as always,
Was the picture of serenity,
While Fogelman told the bartender
"I once knew John Kennedy."

In the corner crying
Stood Sharpe, Schmudde and Katsoris,
"Drinks are not a deduction!"
Had said the bartender Morris.

Hollister, looking pale, said
"I'm gonna be ill."
"Not yet," McGonagle screamed,
"Let me draw up your will."

"I'll jump," said O'Connor
As he pointed to a tower,
"They just cut New York Practice
A whole 'nother hour."

Chiang helped McLaughlin
Stagger to the door.
"I'm dying, Egypt," cried Jerry
As he fell to the floor.

"Planes and ships, I love 'em,"
Sweeney explained.
"We have neither in Iowa"
Mike Martin complained.

Sims turned to Van den Haag
"What do you call entertainment?"
To which the latter replied,
"A nice long arraignment."

Magnetti was bragging
About his trip to Iran.
"Who cares?" said Vairo,
"They have no Pac-Man."

It had reached three a.m.
It was time to go.
I turned to the bartender
"That's the end of the show."

He then informed me
Of an overheard admission
"To pay for this party,
They raised your tuition!"

A MESSAGE FROM THE STAFF

In carrying on the young tradition of the law school yearbook, we hoped that our efforts and improvements would establish the yearbook as yet another link in the chain of progress which Fordham has made in the past few years and would become a significant contribution to the "togetherness" spirit of the Fordham community. The undertaking was not completely altruistic, however, as we expected to and did enjoy it thoroughly. We feel it has brought us closer to Fordham and, in particular, to the Class of '85 and, consequently, has reaffirmed to us the meaning of Dean Feerick's message of togetherness. We hope the yearbook has helped to strengthen this spirit of togetherness in all of you as well as your long-lasting dedication to Fordham Law School.

We would like to express our heartfelt appreciation to all of those who made our task a little easier with special thanks to:

- Deans Reilly and Young, whose enthusiasm and support were constant reminders that our efforts were appreciated;
- typists Patricia Bave, Terry Corriton and Marjorie Sherlock;
- Janice DeTore, whose moral support and help with layout was invaluable;
- all of those who helped with the identification of the many faces which comprise this book.

"Each lawyer must find within his own conscience the touchstone against which to test the extent to which his actions should rise above the minimum standards. But in the last analysis it is the desire for the respect and confidence of the members of his profession and of the society which he serves that should provide to a lawyer the incentive for the highest possible degree of ethical conduct."

To laugh often and much;
To win the respect of intelligent people and affection of children;
To earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends;
To appreciate beauty, to find the best in others;
To leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition;
To know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived.
This is to have succeeded.
