Collins Auditorium on the Rose Hill Campus, first home of Fordham Law School. The Law School opened in September 1905 to thirteen students. The Bronx at that time was a borough of rolling farmland and scattered villages.

Besieged by applications from World War II veterans returning home, the School again moved to larger quarters in 1943. 302 Broadway was the Law School's home for nearly two decades.

By 1915 extraordinary growth necessitated moving the Law School to the Woolworth Building, then the tallest building in the world. Tuition was $180 per annum. Life at the Law School was interrupted shortly thereafter by America's entry into World War I.
The nomadic existence of the Law School ended in 1968 with the construction of its own building on Columbus Avenue and 62nd Street. Note the existence of 61st Street and the absence of Lowenstein and Lincoln Center.

The new building was opened in 1961 with a dedication speech by Robert Kennedy, Attorney General of the United States.

The Honorable William H. Mulligan, Dean of the Law School from 1956-1971; Current Dean John D. Feerick; The Honorable Joseph M. McLaughlin, Dean of the Law School from 1971-1981.
A new wing of the law School was completed in October 1984. Key note speaker at this dedication was Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

A TRIBUTE

In April 1987, New York Governor Mario Cuomo appointed Dean Feerick Chairman of the Commission on Government Integrity. The Commission was created by Executive Order and investigates corruption in the administration of government and determines the adequacy of laws, regulations and procedures relating to government integrity. Announcing the appointment, Gov. Cuomo said he was grateful to Dean Feerick for agreeing to lead the Commission. “His years of practice as one of New York’s leading law firms, his record as an impartial but vigorous fact finder, his role in the state and city Bars’ work on ethics reform, his accomplishments as a determined advocate of reform, and his leadership of one of the state’s great law schools all uniquely qualify him for the position,” the governor stated.

A DEDICATION

We the class of 1988 dedicate our yearbook to Prof. Peter J. O’Connor. Prof. O’Connor joined the Fordham Law School faculty in 1974 following an impressive career in both the public and private sector. Prof. O’Connor served as an Assistant District Attorney under N.Y. DA Frank Hogan and as the Chief of the Appeals Bureau in the Queens County District Attorney’s Office. He was a partner in the law firm of Keefee, Costikiyan & O’Connor.

Prof. O’Connor received his B.A. and J.D. from Fordham and a LLM. from Harvard. He married the former Agnes Shaker in 1956. Mrs. O’Connor graduated from our law school in 1987.

Prof. O’Connor has taught a variety of courses at Fordham including N.Y. Practice and Evidence. He is currently writing a book for Little Brown on N.Y. Motion Practice.

The entire Fordham community gives special thanks to Prof. O’Connor for his dedicated service and friendship.

To the class of 1988:

The Law School Class of 1988 will emerge in a world which needs legal services as much or more than ever. We live in a complex and highly regulated society.

The first obligation of a lawyer is to know the substantive law and to analyze and resolve legal problems. That presumably is what you have been doing the last three years. But lawyers must do even more than know the law and the art of practicing it. They need, as well, to develop a consciousness of their moral and social responsibility to their clients, to the courts in which they appear, to the attorneys and clients on the other side of an issue and to others who are affected by the lawyer’s conduct. A great lawyer is always mindful of the moral and social aspects of the lawyer’s power and position as an officer of the court.

My wish for you in the Class of 1988 is that you will try to leave the world a little better than you found it on your arrival; that you will use your talent and legal education to help those who need it and in ways which will make all of us in the legal profession proud of your efforts.

Sincerely,

Sandra Day O’Connor

“It was good for Fordham and for New York that we should build here and set our cornerstone in the heart of this ‘tight little island,’” recalls University President Emeritus Laurence J. McGinley, SJ. In 1958, with visions of what the future might hold, he strolled across the nothingness that today is Fordham’s Lincoln Center campus.

From the Advocate
Editors & Staff
“Each lawyer must find within his own conscience the touchstone against which to test the extent to which his actions should rise above the minimum standards. But in the last analysis it is the desire for the respect and confidence of the members of his profession and of the society which he serves that should provide to a lawyer the incentive for the highest possible degree of ethical conduct.”
